HONGKONG, NOVEMBER 12TH, 1878.

The progress of General Lt Yung-chot and his adherents is, we hear, being narrowly watched by the Authorities at Canton, and no doubt with a certain amount of anxiety. From bels is still on the borders of Tonquin, though it is probable that detachments have been sent into Yunnan, as was reported some time back. However that may be, it is evident either that the insurgent leader has no settled plan of operations or else that he is taking time to mature it. That he should really contemplate the conquest of Tonquin seems incredible, because he must be aware such an attempt would bring him into immediate and inevitable collision with France, and he undisciplined rabble could make any stand mombers themselves: shrouded in mystery at present. All that we definitely know is that the leader is an ex-Brigadier-General, a disappointed officeseeker, and a former Taiping rebel, but whether the rising is solely his work or not there is so far very little to show. We should like to know what authority our Shanghai morning contemporary has for its report that the insurrection is the work of a secret society whose object is the overthrow of the reigning dynasty. The report may be true enough, though we have heard nothing to that effect. Secret Societies have before been formed for the same purpose, and the Manchu Government has a wholesome horror of their mischievous influence. Morcover, Li Yung Queen's-road, Spring Gardens, fast the Naval chor is not a Tartar, and it is; as we have Hospital, over the bridge, and on to the race before pointed out, a significant fact that the rebellion should have broken out in the marched to the front for an attack, upon the same province in which the Taiping rising village of Wong-nei-cheong, throwing out skiroriginated . They then contemporary had existed and attained such importance without the authorities detecting and crushing it. The intentions of the insurgents will, however, no doubt be obvious enough soon. In the meantime all native reports on the subject should be received with caution, though it will be well not to underestimate the importance of this move ment, which may, for all we know, soon number met them upon the race course. assume a most formidable character.

A correspondent writes on the subject of Volunteer Band, but his letten is too long for insertion. His arguments in favour of establishing a band are very good. If course there should be frequent marching out, and it is possible that the favour accorded by the colonel of the 74th of allowing the pipes and drums to accompany the the volunteers may not always be granted by the succeeding regiments. We are inclined to the opinion that the volunteer movement is now on a firm basis in Hongkong, and think that the cannot be so infatnated as to imagine his matter of a band is merely a question for the Hon .. W. KESWICK-In considering the num! ber of prisoners we have o provide for I would suggest that we should go back to the year 1800 and get a return of the number of prisoners who have been in gool, the number wh have been released before the term of their sentences expired, and what number have been denorted. Statistics are important; let us have them in order that we may judge whether we have to look forward to an unlimited extension of good accommodation to keep down: the criminal class; and, as I mentioned, sarlier in the discussion. I understand last year it was decided that the separate system was to be tried in the gaol, and if my recollection serves me right there was a vote for that purpose.

Hon, H. Lowcook-$10,000. Hon. W. Keswick-I should like to know i there is any data on which we can form an opi nion of the effect of the system. this Excellency—There is no data on that precise point! Mr. Price has built a few cells. but the number is insufficient to farnish data. and you know what Sir Michael Hicks Boach said. His Excellency-I have no hesitation in inswering my lion; friend very frankly. If we most next Monday every member will express his opinion, I hope. I have already heard a great deal of sound advice and the more I hear the botter. I think it better to do all this before.

Sir Michael Hicks-Beach asks me for my opinion after consulting with Mr. Price, Suppose I write in answer to this dispatch "I have in ac cordance with your instructions, consulted Mr. Price " and proceed to express in opinion; my opinion, if it is worth anything, will. I think be much more valuable if we have a complete discussion on the subject.

because otherwise what course am I to take

Hon. W. KERWICK-We cannot properly discuss this subject unless we know the probable cost. We may all quite agree it would be a Very nice thing to have a gool out of town, and various other things which are quite inipracticable; but what we have to consider. in my view, is that the criminal class is a certainty. Are we as practical men, with money which we must not spend heedlessly how are we to deal with it. I think we should see something. like the cost of the two schemes. As to $45,000 buying the land between the present gaol and Chine-road, of course it is simply an error of judgment on the part of some one. The value of the site no one can question. If this question has to be considered it should not be considered simply as to the prisoners, whether it would be better for them to be at Stoneoutter's Island. We have to consider whether the money to be expended would be better expended at Stonecutter's Island | BEFORE THE ACTING CHIEF JUSTICE or here, or whether by a different system of gaol discipline and of punishment generally we could not do without it altogether. His Excellency—It was just before the meet ing that the Colonial Surgeon called and told me Mr. Price was ill; otherwise these figures wald have been before you. But you will bear in mind that as against the sum of money we would have to expend in extending the present site and I quite agree with my hon friend (Mr. Keswick) it would be far in excess of $45,000 against that we could place the site on Stoneoutter's Island which we have for nothing, and the labour the prisoners in making the gaol. I have not myself formed any definite idea on the subject as yet; and will not do so until the question is discussed. I will try and circulate to the members as soon as possible Mr. Price's estimates of the alternative schemes. The ATTORNEY-GENERAL suggested that in considering the question of removing the maol to Stoneoutters' Island it would be advisable to take into consideration the cost of steam launches to convey the prisoners. That would be an exun annual cherge.

The ACTING COLONIAL SECRETARY-There would still be a necessity for a house of detention here, because there would be no necessity to send to Stoneoutter's Island prisoners who were charged with municipal offences, such as muisances or anything in fact merely involving a short imprisonment of a few days or weeks. Juvenile offenders, again, need not be sent to this repres sive prison. Consequently, the number of prisoner to be provided for in the new gao would not, I believe exceed three hundred man, and I believe the firm discipline that could be maintained in a place where there was not the slightest temptation for any one to expect gratification would undoubtedly furnish one of the greatest reasons for the belief that the gool would effect this great object.

The ACTING CHIEF JUSTICE-Prisoners on remand would also remain on this side His Excellency-Then, gentlemen, I will content myself with giving you notice that. I will ask you to resume this discussion on this day week, and on that occasion I will lay before you the report of the commissioners on the mode of flogging in the gool, which I have received only quite recently, and some reports on the question of be very well brought before you the same day,

Should the Council think it expedient these returns should belaid upon the table, and these returns are presented, Ishould be prepared to make a substantive motion, but there are one or two things I would mention now as showing that some reform is necessary in the Bankruptoy Ordinance.
